Love'em or hate'em, they are back! Southwestern Ohio is a hotbed this year for the emergence of the Brood XIV periodical cicadas according to the Ohio Department of Natural Resources Forestry Division. Periodical cicadas appear every 13 or 17 years and they are expected to emerge mid-May and stay around three to four weeks. CLICK to learn more.

They assist us with zoning issues, development plans, business design, and support for our police officers.

Township staff recently celebrated their commitment and we thank them for their contributions. They are an excellent example of #miamitwppride!
